Workshop Objectives —

Through the week we will:

Learn about:

Teams — share models and experiences, build a high performance team together.

Yourself — how you, as an individual, impact, influence, limit or expand the effectiveness of a group.

Take personal action to:

Build new processes as a group.

Create new and innovative ways to share your learnings with others.

Respond to and account for:

Constant changes to our environment

Ambiguity inherently present in a world of conflicting customer demands.

Please keep in mind that the more effort you put into this experience, the more rewarding its effects will be. You will be working extensive hours with your team.

“The WhiteWater Teams experience demonstrates the importance of individual team member’s vitality for a team to reach high performance.”

- Paul Peters

“These leaders are by no means ordinary people. They work out there on the frontier where tomorrow is taking shape, and they serve here as guides – guides to things as they are and as they will be.” — Warren Bennis

"It was one of the most challenging situations I was ever put in, but it was definitely one of the best."

Your Workshop Guides

Whitewater travels through canyons, over rocks and waterfalls, and brings an adventure at every turn. Kim Simmons and Tom Foucault of Whitewater Strategies have assembled a staff that will guide each team through this week. Each facilitator brings over twenty years experience building organizations to survive and thrive in the organizational whitewater of change and continuous improvement.

Together we will explore the principles and practices of High Performance.

Embark on a journey to Transform, Inspire & Lead.

WhiteWater Teams is an experiential workshop where you live the process of working in a team, struggling together to become high performing and succeed in a highly intense, market-driven environment.

WhiteWater Teams is not a
"how to" workshop - it is a
"we did" experience!
